

ccelera

We connect people and technology every day through an innovative journey

Henry Ford once said

“The two most important things in any company do not appear in its balance sheet: its reputation and its people”.

For us, this award represents the solid reputation we have built together with our customers who have believed in us, and who have chosen and continue to choose us for our professionalism. For a consulting firm, professionalism comes from the people who work there and who are unfailingly ready to take on problems, challenges, failures and successes on a daily basis with the same grit, without becoming discouraged, demonstrating flexibility and confidence in their abilities.

At Ccelera we promote a culture of shared responsibility, in an environment that recognises the importance of identity and cooperation between people. We invest in young people who want to grow and in senior figures who want to pass on knowledge and methods learned in their many years of experience. Together with the entire Arsenalia Group, we are engaged in a sustainable development process that follows ESG criteria and aims to achieve certain annual performance objectives in environmental, social and governance areas.

We firmly believe that success comes from true, healthy involvement and that caring for the world around us is the responsibility of both the individual and the entire community.

Thanks to our customers and all the people we work and collaborate with: this achievement belongs to all of us.

→ Learn more about us: www.ccelera.com